CURRENT LAW AND BILL ANALYSIS:

PART I. ALARM SYSTEMS LICENSING ACT MODERNIZATION

The Alarm Systems Licensing Act (ASLA), Chapter 74D of the General Statutes, establishes the Alarm Systems Licensing Board (Board) and requires any person, firm, association, and corporation, or any department or division of those entities, to obtain a license prior to engaging in the alarm systems business in North Carolina. The seven-member Board, under the Department of Public Safety (DPS), enforces the ASLA and administers the licensing, education, and training requirements for those engaged in the alarm systems business. An alarm system business is defined as selling or attempting to sell an alarm system

Certain alarm system activities are exempt from the licensing requirements including the sale of alarm systems not involving personal solicitation at residential or business locations, fire alarm system installation, monitoring activity located in another state not involving personal solicitation, and the provision of certain alarm system services provided to a State agency or local government.

- Give the Board additional powers related to investigating unlicensed activity, engaging in real property transactions, and denying, suspending, or revoking a license or registration.
- Update the various requirements and conditions for issuing licenses, registrations, and permits.
- Remove outdated and unnecessary language and move certain statutory language to more appropriate locations in the Chapter.

This Part would become effective October 1, 2025.

PART II. PRIVATE PROTECTIVE SERVICES BOARD LAWS AMENDMENTS

Chapter 74C of the General Statutes establishes the Private Protective Services Board and requires any private person, firm, association, or corporation that performs private protective services in this State to comply with the licensing requirements of Chapter 74C. The Private Protective Services Board is under DPS, enforces the provisions of Chapter 74C, and administers the licensing, education, and training requirements for those engaged in the private protective services business. G.S. 74C-3(a) defines "private protective services profession" to include the armored car profession, close personal protection, the courier service profession, detection of deception examiner, digital forensics examination, the electronic countermeasures profession, the security guard and patrol profession, the guard dog service profession, a private detective or private investigator, and the special limited guard and patrol profession.
